

Transact Exchange

ERP Integration Simplified

Higher education institutions have come to rely on multiple hosted and cloud-based systems to support their efficiency, growth, and financial health. Managing the integrations that move data between disparate systems can be complex, time consuming, and a burden on internal resources.

To address this problem, we've created Transact Exchange, an integration platform that streamlines and simplifies the integration process across mission-critical systems. This middleware brokers traffic between Transact products, third-party vendors, and ERP partners.

Designed for higher education institutions

Out-of-the-box integration with higher education ERP systems

Compatible with modern ERP REST APIs.

Supports a high volume of transactions

Transact Exchange effortlessly manages inbound and outbound data in real time.

Reduces the need for on-premise integration technologies

Transact Exchange's cloud-based infrastructure helps lower campus IT costs.

Visual programming simplifies maintenance and changes

Drag-and-drop editing provides an intuitive method for visualizing integrations and limits manual coding.

Select from a library of business flows built for higher education

Transact and community-authored flowsets support common higher education practices.

Connect to third-party products with reusable components

Accelerate application development with pre-built code blocks.

Position your institution for the future

Transact Exchange supports a streamlined, state-of-the-art user experience while also reducing costs. The platform also eases pressure on internal resources, leaving employees with more time for higher-value tasks that support institutional efficiency and growth.

Experience smooth, automated data flow across disparate systems

Transact Exchange takes away the complexities of communication between technologies to optimize operations for a range of institutional stakeholders, including IT teams and business administrators. Learn more about how it can enhance your ERP functions.
